

Classic Tiramisu

BY EMILY KURTH

2 0 2 6

Classic Tiramisu

EMILY KURTH

INSTRUCTIONS

BEGIN BY PREHEATING the oven to 350° F. Place egg whites in a large bowl and use an electric mixer to beat until you have soft peaks.

Continue to stir on medium-speed and gradually add half (½ cup) of the granulated sugar. Continue to beat until you achieve stiff peaks. Set aside.

In a separate bowl combine egg yolks, remaining sugar, vanilla extract, and salt. Beat on medium/high speed until lightened and color and slightly thickened.

Gently pour the yolk mixture over the egg whites. Sift flour and cornstarch over the mixture and use a spatula to gently fold everything together until completely combined. Be careful not to overmix batter.

Transfer batter to a plastic bag with an open piping tip. Pipe batter into 4" lines, leaving space between cookies.

Transfer to oven and bake 15-18 minutes or until cookies are slightly golden. Dust with powdered sugar if you have it and allow to cool before removing from pan. Set aside.

Lady Fingers

6 eggs	yolks and whites, separated
1 cup	granulated sugar
1 ½ cups	all-purpose flour
1 cup	sugar
2 tablespoons	vanilla bean paste
½ teaspoon	salt
2 tablespoons	cornstarch

Filling

16 ounces	mascarpone cheese
4 eggs	yolks only
1 tablespoon	vanilla extract
¾ cup	granulated sugar
2 cups	heavy cream
pinch of salt

MAKE THE FILLING

Whisk the mascarpone cheese on medium speed for 30-60 seconds until creamy. Scrape the bowl and set aside.

In a separate heat-proof bowl, add the egg yolks and $\frac{2}{3}$ cup sugar. Boil 1-2" of water in a saucepan and reduce heat to the lowest setting. Place the bowl with egg yolks and sugar on top of the saucepan such that the water does not touch the bottom of the bowl. This is a double boiler. Whisk on medium-high speed for exactly 2 minutes, then remove from heat. The mixture will be light and fluffy. Do not overmix or overheat as it can become grainy. Allow to cool.

Pour the egg yolk and sugar mixture onto the mascarpone cheese. Add salt and vanilla, then whisk on medium speed just until combined, scraping the bowl halfway.

In a separate bowl, whip the cold heavy cream until it reaches medium stiff peaks (just starts to hold shape). Do not overmix.

Add the whipped cream to the mascarpone mixture in 2-3 additions, folding gently with a rubber spatula and taking care not to knock out the air. You will have a creamy, light mixture.

ASSEMBLY

Pour the coffee into a wide bowl, and make sure it is not hot. Dip each ladyfinger quickly into the coffee, for about 1 second each side, and add a layer of soaked ladyfingers in the bottom of a 9x9" dish.

Spread on half of the mascarpone cream evenly, then sift a thin layer of cocoa powder evenly on top.

Repeat with another layer of soaked ladyfingers, top with the remaining mascarpone cream, and sift with another layer of cocoa powder evenly on top.

Cover and refrigerate for at least 6 hours, or ideally overnight. When ready to serve, cut into slices and serve!

Total Time: 4+ hours with chilling

Yields 8-10 servings

Recipe by: Emily Kurth

Bakers Notes

Ingredients

I like to get my ingredients from Trader Joes—always consistent and fresh.

- ♦ Mascarpone—I get 2 of their 8 ounce mascarpone cheese containers (to make 16oz). Sometimes when I'm in a rush I forget to grab two, so just remember when you're at the store!
- ♦ Cream—make sure to get the heavy whipping cream in the plastic bottle with the pink cap, not the carton container. Something about the texture is always best when I use that one. Every once in a while I use the carton version and the filling can taste chalky after a day or two (I'm not sure why).
- ♦ Vanilla—in the recipe I wrote 2 tablespoons of vanilla bean paste, but in reality I always measure with my heart. I like to use a combo of vanilla extract and paste for the lady fingers, and just dump it in until it smells right. Then I usually splash a little extract into the heavy cream when I'm whipping it up.

Doubling the Recipe

- ♦ If you want to make a large batch, I would recommend making double the amount of filling and triple the amount of lady fingers. Something about the ratio when you have a bigger batch just requires extra lady fingers.
- ♦ Along the same lines—If it's your first time making the recipe, I definitely recommend making at least an extra half batch if not doubling the lady fingers in comparison to the filling. I tend to personally eat the cookies as they come out of the oven, or burn half of them, and end up with barely enough for the tiramisu. If you have the time and ingredients, double it!

Extra Advice

- ♦ Make sure you don't dip the lady fingers in the coffee for too long. You don't want the coffee to be runny and soggy. The cookies will get soft just from being in the filling, so you don't have to worry about them being too dry when you layer them in.
- ♦ A thin layer of cocoa powder on top goes a long way! If the powder is too thick people tend to inhale it and choke when they're eating...
- ♦ Making this recipe always takes longer than you expect. Enjoy!